

Scope

So, from Why to What!

What they say they need:

- A single web page to search for their next holiday destination.
- The ability to pick a city of their choice.
- Choose their accommodation.
- Be able to pick from various bars & restaurants.
- View where the tourist attractions are.
- Display the page in a way that is appealing to their user.

What they really need:

- A visually effective web page to choose their next vacation city.
- Numerous options to choose from, for their accommodation.
- Various options for bars/restaurants/food to socialise in.
- Make the search results visible and readable.

What they don't know they need:

- A map so they can visualise their choices.
- A map with the locations pinpointed and the information on that place.

Functions and Content.

E.g. A user wants to choose their city. The user begins to type any letter into an autofill autocomplete search box and the results box begins to populate with suggestions of cities beginning with that letter.

Functional Vs Content requirements
